In the current conditions of globalization, the modernization of the education system is emerging as one of the important factors in the development of each state. Since knowledge, innovation and intellectual potential have become the main drivers of economic development in modern society, the need to update the educational system, to bring it to the level of international standards, is growing even more. In this context, international integration processes in the education system are of great importance, as they allow for the adoption of advanced foreign experience, improving the quality of education, and preparing globally competitive personnel.

In the context of the New Uzbekistan, comprehensive reforms are being implemented, particularly in the field of education, within the framework of the "New Uzbekistan Development Strategy". This strategy sets as priorities the radical modernization of the education system, strengthening integration into the international educational space, introducing advanced pedagogical technologies, and improving the quality of education. This will serve to ensure the socio-economic development of the country and adapt the knowledge and skills of young people to international requirements.

International integration is achieved through ensuring the openness of the educational system, expanding academic exchange programs, and developing cooperation with foreign higher education institutions. As a result, innovative approaches to the educational process are introduced, teaching methods are improved, and students' global thinking is formed. At the same time, adaptation to international rankings and standards serves as an important criterion for assessing the quality of education.

Below, we will look at the definition and content of each basic concept in our topic.

Modernization of the educational system is the process of updating the existing educational model on the basis of modern requirements, innovations and global standards. Today, this issue is one of the priorities within the framework of the new Uzbekistan development strategy.

The main goal of modernization: the main goal of modernizing the educational system is to train personnel with competitive, independent thinking, modern knowledge and skills. This serves the economic and social development of the country.

Key areas: 1. Updating the content of education. It is important to revise curricula based on modern science and technology. For example, attention is being paid to STEM areas.

2. Digitization. Through the extensive introduction of information technology into the educational process, distance education, online platforms and the use of electronic resources are expanding. This process is closely related to Digital transformation.

3. Enhancing teacher capacity. It is important to improve the skills of teachers, teach modern methods, and introduce international experience.

4. Expanding international cooperation. The quality of education is enhanced through joint programs, academic exchanges and grants with foreign universities. Programs such as Erasmus+ play an important role in this process.

5. Developing educational infrastructure. It is necessary to improve the learning environment by providing modern schools, laboratories, and technological equipment.

Modernization of the educational system is a long-term and continuous process, which is one of the main factors of the country's development. Especially in the conditions of New Uzbekistan, this direction stands at the center of state policy and creates a solid foundation for the development of the future.

Modernization of the education system is of particular importance in today's era of globalization. In particular, within the framework of the New Uzbekistan Development Strategy, international integration is considered an important factor in improving the quality of education.

In the process of modernization of the educational system, international integration is manifested as an important strategic factor. It not only serves to promote the national education system, but also helps to make it an integral part of the global education space. Through international integration, advanced foreign experiences, innovative pedagogical approaches and modern educational technologies penetrate the national education system. This makes it possible to enrich the content of the educational process, to improve it on the basis of the requirements of the Times.

International integration also plays an important role in harmonizing educational standards. Through cooperation with the world's leading educational systems, training programs and evaluation criteria are updated on the basis of international requirements. As a result, the quality of education will improve and the level of knowledge of graduates will be brought into line with global standards.

Another important aspect of international integration is the development of academic mobility. The education or qualification of students and teachers in foreign higher education institutions allows them to master new knowledge and experience. This in turn leads to an expansion of innovative thinking and creative approaches in the national education system.

International integration is the harmonization of the national education system with world educational standards, experience and innovation. This process includes:

1. cooperation with foreign higher education institutions;
2. student and teacher exchange;
3. joint educational programs;
4. Participation in international rankings and accreditations.

The New Uzbekistan Development Strategy is an important state program aimed at the comprehensive development of the country in 2022–2026, which outlines the main directions for building a New Uzbekistan. This strategy includes 7 priority areas. Among them, issues such as honoring human dignity, building a just society, developing the economy, improving social sectors, strengthening spiritual and educational work, and security and foreign policy issues are important.

The main goal of the strategy is to form an open and strong civil society, increase the standard of living of the population and strengthen the country's prestige in the international arena. It has a special focus on education, health, digital economy and Entrepreneurship Development.

In the development strategy of the new Uzbekistan, the educational system is considered as the main factor in the development of society. Reforms in this direction serve not only to train educated personnel, but also to form an innovative and competitive economy.
