education, Raising a child

The well-known Uzbek writer Abdulla Awlani's opinion on education, "For us, education is a matter of life, death, salvation, disaster, happiness, or joy" means that representatives of all nationalities can understand that personal education is not a private matter, but it is a social, national, state work. Raising a child is a long process.

In all nations, children are the eyes of parents and the beacon of hope for the future. Scientific studies show that the child is mentally handicapped by two things.

1. Irresponsibility of parents.
2. Pedagogical ignorance of parents.

Based on this, the role of the pedagogue in personal education is incomparable.

EDUCATION- is a pedagogical activity organized between the teacher and the student, which guides the student towards a certain goal, approaching the socio-historical experiences of the society, forming the personality in all aspects, his behavior and outlook, social consciousness, and the rich spiritual ideologies of the people. is a focused intensive activity process. The art of education seems familiar and easy to people who are not familiar with its theory and practice. Everyone knows that education requires patience. Some people say that there should be innate abilities and skills for education. But it should not be forgotten that education requires special knowledge in addition to these.

On the basis of education, the mind of the student is formed, his spiritual wealth and feelings develop. Moral habits that serve to properly organize interaction with people, which are necessary for finding one's place in social life, are formed.

In any social society, the education of the young generation is organized based on a specific goal. In this, the role of the strength of families is incomparable. Family is a part of society. A family is a state within a state. Everyone has their own rights and duties in the family, just like in the state. The most basic right of a child is the right to family education. The main duty of parents is to take care of their children and raise them to be perfect people.

The 14th chapter of the Constitution of Uzbekistan is dedicated to the family, as the family and its role in the society are incomparable.

President Shavkat Mirziyoev is paying special attention to the issues of family upbringing, raising children in the family, improving the conditions of families and strengthening their financial support. Our state highly values the task of family and child education. All necessary conditions are being created for the successful implementation of this work.

In this regard, state MTTs are being overhauled and equipped with equipment that meets the most modern international standards. In order to include all children in MTT, private non-governmental family MTTs were also established.

The purpose of education is determined based on the development of social society, its direction of development, and the content of social relations.

Clarity of purpose is important in education.

The purpose of the education organized in our country today is to raise a perfect generation, to bring it to adulthood in the spirit of love for the country, in the spirit of the best customs and family traditions, and to become a knowledgeable and cultured person for the society.

First of all, it is necessary to properly form the educational environment in the family. What kind of person our children will be tomorrow largely depends on how they spent their childhood, what they brought into their minds and hearts from the environment.

It is said that a mother came to a sage and asked when to start raising her child. The wise man asked how old the boy was. He exclaimed when he realized that he was five years old.

- Go home quickly!

You have wasted the five years you need to raise a child.

In the early years, the child receives the main part of education quickly and a lot. And during this period, 90% of the concepts of good and bad are absorbed into their minds.

There are a number of unique methods of raising a child in the family, the implementation of which increases the effectiveness of education. They are below.

Parents' responsibility in upbringing.

Unity in education

Labor education

Parental education of children with kindergarten, school and community.

Parents should treat all their children equally and treat them fairly.

At this point, we will give some advice of pedagogues to parents regarding child education.

1. Do not start educational work in a bad mood.
2. An educator should combine determination and gentleness. Everything should be on time and in moderation.
3. Education means slowly reaching the goal. Increase the demand depending on the age and physical capabilities of the child.
4. Get your child to believe that "My parents believe in me." Hug him. Laugh about your little mistakes.
5. Do not compare your child with his brother, sister or peers in the neighborhood. Your child will learn to be jealous. Compare him with yourself.
6. Judge not your child's good or bad actions. A child and his actions are not the same thing.
7. If he makes a mistake, tell him the reasons and consequences. Let him understand the error of the analysis he heard from you, its causes and consequences. He learns to tell his conclusion.
8. Praise and support your child's every achievement. So that he can get energy to achieve great achievements.

9. When your child is faced with a problem, do not show him a ready-made solution. Make it possible for him to find a solution on his own. Learns to think independently.

10. Give your child independence, educate him, but do not control his every step and act as a guard.

"Childhood is a period of many questions, opportunities and consequences." One of the philosophers said A. Adler.

Let's remember our childhood for a moment. Let's remember the role of our parents' upbringing in our current life experience, achievements and shortcomings. Let's take a look at what we are strong in and what we are weak in. That's when we feel how our parents raised us. We see their achievements and shortcomings. Because all these are living with us.

Today we are parents. Therefore, it is easy for us to understand them. Our strengths are those that they pay attention to, and our weaknesses are those that they pay little attention to. Pedagogical scientists conducted a survey among more than 100 men and women. When asked, "If you were a child again, what words would you like to hear from your parents," the respondents said, "If we were to hear from our parents, "I believe in you," "I love you," " We lived happier than now when they were saying "don't be afraid to make mistakes" and "don't be afraid to make mistakes". "Our worldview will be different," they answered.

These answers should be understood as pedagogical culture of parents rather than dissatisfaction with parents. Because there is no kinder than our parents. However, in most cases, they were not aware of education methods. If they had known, they would have used it as a soul.

Today, consistent reforms in our country are showing their results in all areas. Including in the field of education. Construction of many educational institutions, training of qualified personnel, organization of several family centers, such examples can be continued for a long time.

In essence, all of this is to make our children mature and well-rounded individuals. Because a country with perfect children never stops developing.
